Description

The Siemens 6SN1130-1DB12-0BA0 is a SIMODRIVE 611-D feed module designed for precise control in industrial automation systems. This module supports two axes with current ratings of 9/18 A, accommodating both low and high power applications. It utilizes a direct measuring system for accurate position feedback and processes current signals, ensuring responsive and reliable operation. The module's compact design facilitates integration into various automation setups, making it suitable for applications requiring precise motion control and high-performance standards.
